

Continued Professional Training for Ceramic Archaeologists

Final places

The Medieval Pottery Research Group with funding from English Heritage has been running a very successful series of training courses designed to provide career development for archaeological ceramicists who work on a freelance basis or within commercial archaeological units or in the university or museum sector.

Due to the illness and tragic death of Alan Vince the Medieval Imported Pottery Course was postponed and is now being held in January 2010. There are some places left on this course but please book soon.

The course runs for 2 days and costs £50 per person. The cost covers all tuition fees, course notes and refreshments and a light lunch each day. Trainees will be expected to pay for their own travel and accommodation.

For more information, or to book a place (booking forms can be found on the MPRG website (<http://www.medievalpottery.org.uk>), please contact:

Victoria Bryant, Worcestershire Historic Environment and Archaeology Service, Woodbury, University of Worcester, Henwick Grove, Worcester WR2 6AJ, 01905 855494, vbryant@worcestershire.gov.uk

Medieval Imported Pottery (2 courses) 25th to 26th January 2010 and 27th to 28th January 2010

Tutor: Duncan Brown

Venue: University of Southampton, Avenue Campus, Highfield, Southampton

- Introduction to imported pottery found in UK ceramic assemblages
- A detailed examination of the main imported ceramic wares and their dating
- Practical microscope work to improve skills in identification of imported pottery.